Parent Discussion on Assessing Progress in School

Tuesday October 21, 2008

7:30 - 9:00 P.M.

How can parents collect information about the specifics of a child's school experience when children share so little of their day at school? We'll talk about:

- ways to look at the work children bring home as a source of information
- looking at room displays and activities as an indicator of your child's experiences
- communicating with teachers informally and at conferences
- using information about the whole class (message boards, notes, etc.) to guide conversations with your child about school
- indicators of growth and development that can help you think about future programs for children
- Portfolios

Coming to this discussion may help you focus on how to take best advantage of the fall conference with your child's teachers!

Please return the form below if you plan to attend. Hope to see you then!
